

Leading with Confidence: Arnolds Designed Practice for Doubleheader Victories Related to Audubons Family Debate and Follod Interest

Cahlum Andy

Abstract—This paper examines Arnold’s designed practice for leading with confidence in doubleheader victories, with a focus on the influence of Audubon’s family debate and followed interest. The study draws on qualitative data gathered from interviews with Arnold and his coaching staff, as well as observations of team practices and games. Results indicate that Arnold’s leadership style is characterized by a strong emphasis on preparation, communication, and trust-building, which he believes are essential components for achieving success in doubleheaders. Furthermore, his approach is heavily influenced by his interest in Audubon’s family debate and the lessons he has learned from studying the naturalist’s work. Specifically, Arnold emphasizes the importance of adaptability, resilience, and strategic thinking in the face of adversity, and encourages his players to embrace these qualities in order to overcome challenges and achieve their goals. Overall, this study provides valuable insights into the role of leadership in achieving success in competitive sports, and highlights the importance of developing a strong sense of confidence and resilience in order to overcome obstacles and achieve victory.
