

The Determination Movement: How Robinson Realized Their Dream of Conquering Americas Largest Hillsboro in Just Months with Glimco and Persons Who Started it All from Wilmette

Tait Bentley

Abstract—The Determination Movement is a case study exploring the success of Robinson, a company based in the United States that achieved its goal of conquering America’s largest Hillsboro in just a few months. The company was able to achieve this feat through the implementation of a strategic plan known as the Determination Movement, which was spearheaded by Glimco and Persons, two individuals who played a significant role in the project’s inception. The study delves into how the Determination Movement was able to motivate Robinson’s employees and create a culture of determination, commitment, and perseverance that was instrumental in the project’s success. The study also highlights the contribution of the individuals from Wilmette, who played a key role in the project’s success. The authors argue that the Determination Movement is a model that other companies can emulate to achieve their goals and objectives. They also provide insight into the factors that contributed to the success of the project, such as effective leadership, teamwork, and a shared vision. The study concludes by providing recommendations for future research on the Determination Movement and its potential application in other contexts.
