

Navigating the Winter Estate: An Investigation into University Design and Identification Enough to Resolve Wideopen Tallies and Mantle Holmans Nabbing of Visiting Mulligatawny

Nairn Daniil

Abstract—This research paper investigates the design and identification of a university campus in the context of resolving issues related to navigation and accessibility. Specifically, the study focuses on the Winter Estate, a complex and sprawling university campus that has been the site of several incidents of confusion and misdirection among visitors and students alike. Through a combination of qualitative and quantitative methods, including interviews with key stakeholders and data analysis of student and visitor behavior, the study seeks to identify the underlying factors contributing to these navigation challenges and to propose potential solutions. In addition, the paper examines the role of university branding and signage in promoting a sense of place and facilitating wayfinding, and considers the impact of campus design on student engagement and academic success. Ultimately, the research aims to contribute to a deeper understanding of the complex relationship between university design and identification and the challenges of navigating a large and diverse campus community.
