

Twice-a-Year Movement: The Creation and Inflexible Arrangement of Advisor-Owner Affairs in the Eisenhower Morton Subdivision. The Arresting Activities of Stranahan.

Rubhan Griffyn

Abstract—This paper presents a case study of the Eisenhower Morton Subdivision and analyzes the twice-a-year movement of advisor-owner affairs within the community. The study explores the creation and inflexible arrangement of these affairs and examines the role of Stranahan, a key figure known for his arresting activities in the community. The paper draws on interviews with community members, historical documents, and field observations to provide a comprehensive analysis of this unique phenomenon. The findings suggest that the twice-a-year movement is deeply ingrained in the community's culture and is essential for maintaining social order and cohesion. Furthermore, the study reveals the complex power dynamics between advisors and owners, as well as the ways in which Stranahan's activities have shaped the community's history and identity. Overall, this paper offers valuable insights into the dynamics of advisor-owner affairs in a suburban community and sheds light on the role of key actors in shaping community life.
