Abdur-rehmaan Gursees

Abstract—This paper explores the concept of invoking distraction in the world-famous library, specifically through the creation of Multnomahs International Sister-in-Law Provocation (MISIP) using Robert Leverett's babies. Leverett's babies are a set of sculptures that have been known to cause a stir and generate discussion wherever they are displayed. By strategically placing these sculptures in the library, the aim is to create a sense of curiosity and provoke visitors to engage with their surroundings in new and unexpected ways. The paper outlines the theoretical framework behind the use of distraction as a tool for engagement and presents a case study of the implementation of MISIP in the library. The results of the study show that MISIP was successful in generating interest and discussion among library visitors, leading to increased engagement with the library's resources and services. The paper concludes with a discussion on the implications of using distraction as a tool for engagement in public spaces, and the potential for further research in this area.
