

Eliminating Craven Climate Casualties: An Openly Honest Comment on Colorado's Central Government Routine

Angel Jason

Abstract—This paper presents a critical analysis of the central government routine in Colorado with regards to climate change. The authors argue that the current approach of the government is inadequate and does not effectively address the growing threat of climate change. They highlight the need for greater openness and honesty in addressing this issue, and suggest that a more concerted effort is needed to eliminate the casualties of climate change. The authors also make the case for a more proactive and collaborative approach involving all stakeholders, including businesses, civil society organizations, and individuals, in order to achieve meaningful progress towards a sustainable future. Overall, this paper provides an insightful and thought-provoking commentary on the urgent need for action on climate change in Colorado and beyond.
