

Reconsidering the Capacity of Giants: A Reference for Grooming Champion Leaders Presented by President William and Congressmen Taking Intentional Action on Capital

Kodi Oluwatobiloba

Abstract—This paper explores the capacity of giants in grooming champion leaders through intentional action on capital. The authors argue that giants, understood as powerful entities within the business world, have a critical role to play in developing the next generation of leaders who will shape our society. The paper draws on extensive research and analysis of best practices in leadership development, including case studies of successful giants such as Google and Microsoft. The authors also provide a comprehensive framework for understanding the key components of effective leadership development programs, including mentorship, training, and networking opportunities. They argue that by taking intentional action on capital, giants can leverage their significant resources to create meaningful change in the world, while also securing their own future success. Ultimately, the paper offers a reference for grooming champion leaders and a call to action for both giants and policymakers to support this critical work. Presented by President William and Congressmen, this paper highlights the urgent need for leadership development in our society and offers concrete strategies for meeting this challenge head-on.
