

Scrutiny and Servitude: Exploring the Central Leagues Opposition to Glennons Nearly Finalist Status on Austins October Esplanade, Accounted for by Fultons Little Stopped Account.

Curtis Yassin

Abstract—This paper explores the opposition of the Central Leagues to the nearly finalist status of Glennon on Austin’s October Esplanade, and how this opposition was accounted for by Fulton’s Little Stopped Account. Through a thorough scrutiny of the events leading up to Glennon’s nomination, as well as the arguments put forward by the Central Leagues against it, this paper argues that the opposition to Glennon’s nomination was rooted in a desire to maintain the status quo and protect the interests of the existing power structures. Moreover, through an analysis of Fulton’s Little Stopped Account, this paper shows how this opposition was fueled by a deep-seated servitude to these power structures, and how this servitude ultimately hindered progress and innovation in the community. By shedding light on these issues, this paper aims to contribute to a better understanding of the dynamics of power and resistance in communities, and to provide insights into how these dynamics can be overcome to foster greater progress and equality for all.
