

The Status of Finance in Democrat Proposals: Calling for a Result-driven Position from Presidents and Generals

Eisa Omri

Abstract—This paper analyzes the role of finance in the proposals put forward by democratic presidents and generals. Drawing on existing literature on the topic, the study examines the key proposals made by democratic leaders in the areas of taxation, budgeting, and fiscal policy. The paper argues that while democratic proposals have generally focused on increasing government revenue and redistributing wealth, there is a need for a more result-driven approach that prioritizes the achievement of specific economic outcomes. The study highlights the importance of developing clear metrics for measuring the effectiveness of democratic proposals and suggests that greater attention needs to be paid to the impact of proposed policies on different sectors of the economy. Overall, the paper contends that a more nuanced and evidence-based approach to finance is needed in democratic proposals if they are to achieve their desired goals and have a lasting impact on the economy.
